

Hi there!

Welcome to the course and I'm so excited you're about to unlock the key to understanding unit testing with JUnit and how unit testing and it's associated technologies hang together!

I have created a few different courses on different testing technologies and have assembled the best units from each course to put together this one on JUnit. Some of the units may look visually different from each other because of this, but don't let that put you off - rest assured that the content works together to deliver most comprehensive coverage of JUnit and unit testing concepts in general to bring your understanding up to date with the best practices we have today and show you how it's all used in practice.

Thanks again and please feel free to reach out if you have any questions on the course!

Cheers,

Matt
